"There aren't many who can match the enticingly dark, edgy and wonderfully engaging musical storytelling of Dennis O'Hagan". ~ Jim Nolan, NPR

"The CD sounds great... a great new band, if you get the chance go see them... I've added the [Unabashedly] Political Song and Emerald to the Sirius database and playing them on Celtic Crush... Great stuff" ~ Larry Kirwan, host, Sirius XM Satellite Radio, New York City

"It's not just the diversity that makes The Criminal Ear a thoroughly entertaining start-to-finish listen; the material is also top notch". ~ Mike Breen, CityBeat Magazine

"Fans of Frank Black, Lou Barlow and Jeff Tweedy need to buy this record. Now. A remarkable album from a remarkably talented band." ~ Mark Lefebvre, WSCA 106.1 Portsmouth, NH

"The variety within O'Hagan's work gives the feeling that each song has been meticulously crafted as opposed to just thrown together so that the band can rock out. This is an artist's rock n' roll band." ~ Jon Ostro, VP of Bandsintown, Founder of MicControl, New York City

"O'Hagan borrows sounds from traditional folk roots, psychedelic rock, funk, and strong overtones of early REM-style college rock... his musical appeal is as far stretching as his apparent influences." ~ John Meyer, Music Reviewer, New York City

"A great mix of rock and roll and a traditional Celtic folk sound stemming from the vocals and rhythms. The clash of old and new, rock and folk makes O'Hagan unique and offers something great for listeners looking for a new sound." ~ Collin Kleinman, Southbay Magazine, Los Angeles
